Hi Dave,

You adjusted my suspension at SoSo Cycles about a week ago on my V2 and I couldn't be happier.

The bike by comparison is so much smoother and definitely raised my confidence leaning it over. It's amazing and completely changed the bike for me.

I know I've said this a few times now when you adjusted it but I have to say it again, thank you so much!

Lessons from a Chef turned Deputy CTO

Manuel S., Deputy CTO @ PaxFamília, Brussels, Belgium

Manuel's learning journey: Learn Ruby, Learn HTML, Learn Git & GitHub, and Build a Website with HTML, CSS, and Github Pages.

What inspired you to learn to code?

I studied economics at my university, but it was a thing my parents recommended. I really hated it, so I dropped out. Eventually, I went into cooking and was a professional chef for 3-4 years.

My brother is a tour guide, and a tourist did bootcamps. He mentioned this, and it inspired me. That's when I got the money together to do one. I started Codecademy to prepare for it.

Because I was so new to coding, and because the bootcamp was going to speed through front-end topics like CSS and HTML, I used Codecademy for that.

Design With Accessibility in Mind

According to the Harvard Business Review 81% of customers attempt to solve issues with a product before reaching out to a live representative. 91% of people also said that they would use a knowledge base if it can satisfy their needs.

What is a Blog?

Blog (Weblog) = a informational website or online journal that displays posts by one or more entities and has links to comments on those posts. These posts can contain text, images, videos, or links to other pages and posts.

When to Create a Blog?

After your website is launched, work can begin on your blog. A blog is like weaving a net. The more knots (posts) in the net, the more users you can attract to your business and convert.

Benefits of a Blog

- Drives website conversions.
- Establishes you and/or your company as an authority in your subject/industry.
- Develops interactivity and relationships with your customers and encourages engagement.
- Reinforces your brand.
- Differentiates your business from your competitors.

Drives Conversions

- Blogs have a longer lifespan than ads, are considered effective by marketers and may provide the biggest return on investment.
- However, it can take 6-12 months to see the investment.
- Be sure to add clear call-to-actions to the blog posts in order to drive the engagement and get conversions.

Social Media Content

- Content from your blog can be used to provide social media content.
- Make sure you adapt the blog content to the format of the particular social media you are using.
- You can use an RSS feed to automatically send blog posts as emails, newsletters, and to selected social media channels.

Social Media Channels

- Social Media
 - Facebook/Instagram – PeerTube/Pixelfed
 - X (Twitter) – Mastodon
 - Pinterest
 - LinkedIn
 - Quora/Reddit
- Other Sites
 - Wikipedia/Medium

Builds Trust

- A blog post can provide more information about a particular topic than an ad can. With a blog you can:
 - Answer Frequently Asked Questions
 - Provide News and Information on the company
 - Can build credibility/authority and show you know your industry building trust.

Differentiate/Reinforce

- A blog can spotlight the differences of your company versus your competitors.
- Having consistent blog posts can reinforce present your brand and company to your target audience/market.
- Use keywords related to your companies products/services to help communicate your message effectively.

Drawbacks of a Blog

- It can take a lot of time to rank on Google and get traffic.
 - About 4-6 months (~75 posts) or more depending on your niche.
 - It takes a lot of consistency and persistence.
 - You have to believe you will get there.
 - The competition can be fierce for rankings.
 - You have to promote your blog outside of your site.

AI – Chat, Bard, Bing

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is making its ways into the world of blogging. It is yet to be determined what affect this technology will have. A personally written blog will have more expression of your business. However, if you use this technology:

- Make sure the information generated is accurate.
- Use the text generated as a suggestion and go from there.
- Make sure you know where the information came from.

Example of a Blog

- McMullen House Garden Shop Blog
 - A blog about native plants, butterfly gardening, and the relationships of butterflies to plants.
 - <https://shop.mcmullenhouse.com>
 - 2.5 years old and has about 230 blog posts

Robert's Blogging Tips

1. McMullen House: combine information about butterflies and their host plants along with the location. Look for places where you can combine two or more products together in a post to produce more interest.
2. Use Google Trends to find topics that are gaining in interest, where, and when.
3. Follow E-E-A-T – Experience, Expertise, Authoritativeness, and Trustworthiness
